Children at Strawberry Hill Elementary, located in Surrey, BC are excited to start the school year on their newly completed playground. During the summer, Strawberry Hill had the final phase of their playground supplied and installed by Habitat Systems Inc. The school was in need of a new playground to replace their wooden structure, which was not CSA compliant, and to accommodate their growing school.

With their PAC and the help of volunteers, the playground became a reality through effective fundraising efforts. Teresa Steeves, PAC Vice Chair during the project stated that, “without our fundraising activities and our casino grant, this playground would not have been possible”. Once funds were collected, the PAC gathered brochures from different manufacturers and then took children out to test a variety of play equipment. Steeves stated that the structures “all looked good in the catalogues, but you really see the difference in quality and play value when you actually go out and play on them.”

The design for Strawberry Hill was chosen by finding the best structure that suited their budget and space requirements. Steeves was impressed with the quality of Habitat’s installation. “It was fun to pick up my kids from school each day and see the playground being installed”. Steeves’ advice to others beginning a playground project is “fundraising is the key to success”. When asked about how the children liked the playground, Steeves stated, “the kids love it!” ✓
